

Dear FCC Commissioner,

I would like to comment on broadcast ownership and democracy. My opinion is that the concentration of broadcast ownership that has taken place in the US since 1996 has not served our democracy well. A democracy can only function with an informed populace that has access to many points of view. A further concentration of broadcast media ownership will only worsen this trend, and hence serve to weaken our democracy. I urge the FCC to keep the present rules on media ownership in place.

Sincerely,

Keith Howell
